Period for Reply

A SHORTENED STATUTORY PERIOD FOR REPLY IS SET TO EXPIRE 3 MONTH(S) FROM THE MAILING DATE OF THIS COMMUNICATION.

- Extensions of time may be available under the provisions of 37 CFR 1.136(a). In no event, however, may a reply be timely filed after SIX (6) MONTHS from the mailing date of this communication.
- If the period for reply specified above is less than thirty (30) days, a reply within the statutory minimum of thirty (30) days will be considered timely.
- If NO period for reply is specified above, the maximum statutory period will apply and will expire SIX (6) MONTHS from the mailing date of this communication.
- Failure to reply within the set or extended period for reply will, by statute, cause the application to become ABANDONED (35 U.S.C. § 133). Any reply received by the Office later than three months after the mailing date of this communication, even if timely filed, may reduce any earned patent term adjustment. See 37 CFR 1.704(b).

Status

DETAILED ACTION

1. Amendment received on June 01, 2004 has been acknowledged. Claim 9 has canceled.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

2. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

3. Claims 1-3, 7, 10-17, 20, 22-24, 27, 29-31, 35, 37-39, 43-51, 55-63, 67 and 69-72, and 73-77 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Breen, Jr. et al. (6,598,027 B1), in view of Tomsen (2002/0013950 A1).

Breen, Jr. et al. al discloses a system and method for implementing e-commerce transactions via a network (20) comprising: identifying a regulated item that satisfies a predetermined criteria, wherein the predetermined criteria indicates that the item is prohibited from being purchased by the customer (see col. 1, lines 15-57); and taking action to prevent the purchase of the regulated item (245). The action is automatically implemented by a system server (see Figures 1 and 3). The predetermined criteria include a regulation parameter that corresponds to regulations that restrict sales and deliveries to a particular jurisdiction (see Fig. 7). The action comprises steps to prevent completion of checkout (see col. 10, lines 16-36). Breen, Jr. et al. further disclose an inventory subsystem (16b), a customer interface (12), and an order fulfillment subsystem (23). However, Breen et al. fails to explicitly disclose modifying a display of items available for purchase by the customer by restricting display of items, which are prohibited from being purchased by the customer.

Tomsen discloses the concept of conducted transaction using an interactive television system. Tomsen further discloses a family safe viewing system to review item/information that are saved in a shopping cart. The family safe can display a listing of items such as listing of pending transactions. The family safe also stores information such as restrictions on purchases by individual family members such as children. From this teaching of Tomsen, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to modify the e-commerce transaction of Breen, Jr. et al. to include the viewing and storing of information including restricted purchase items of taught by Tomsen in order to prevent children from viewing and purchasing restricted goods and services.

As per preventing the customer from adding/removing an item to/from a cart, Breen, Jr. et al. teaches a registration process for potential buyers (see Fig. 10A-F) and a login screen for allowing users to enter a "Secured For Trade" portion of the web site (Fig. 11). Thus, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to only display items for which a person is authorized to purchase for security purposes. Alternatively, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to prevent a customer from adding a restricted item to his cart, or removing such an item from his cart to facilitate checkout.

4. Claims 1-3, 6, 8, 10-17, 20, 22-24, 27, 29-31, 34, 36-39, 42-47, 49-51, 54-59, 61-63, 66 and 68-74 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Matsuo et al. (2001/0042021 A1), in view of Tomsen (2002/0013950 A1).

Matsuo et al disclose a system and method for implementing e-commerce via a network (10) comprising identifying a regulated item selected by a customer, wherein the item satisfies a predetermined criteria indicating that the item is prohibited from being purchased by the customer in a particular jurisdiction (paragraph 110); and automatically taking action to prevent the customer from completing a checkout operation for the regulated item (see paragraphs 111-112). The product is an alcohol product, and the predetermined criteria correspond to regulations that restrict the sales to persons under a minimum age. However, Matsuo et al. fails to explicitly disclose modifying a display of items available for purchase by the customer by restricting display of items, which are prohibited from being purchased by the customer. Tomsen discloses the concept of conducted transaction using an interactive television system. Tomsen further discloses a family safe viewing system to review item/information that are saved in a shopping cart. The family safe can display a listing of items such as listing of pending transactions. The family safe also stores information such as restrictions on purchases by individual family members such as children. From this teaching of Tomsen, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to modify the e-commerce transaction of Breen, Jr. et al. to include the viewing and storing of information including restricted purchase items of taught by Tomsen in order to prevent children from viewing and purchasing restricted goods and services. As per preventing the customer from adding the item to a cart, or removing the item from a cart. It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to implement any of these steps to facilitate checkout.

5. Claims 4, 5, 18, 19, 25, 26, 32, 33, 40, 41, 52, 53, 64, and 65 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Matsuo et al. in view of Tomsen, as applied to claims 1, 16, 23, 30, 37, 49, and 61 above, and further in view of Tracy et al. The Matsuo et al. and Tomsen combination discloses all of the limitations of the claims except for regulations restricting sales during specific days. Tracy et al disclose a checkout system that automatically prohibits the sale of items during specific days (see col. 13, line 57 through col. 14, line 2). Thus, It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to employ the teachings of Tracy et al. with the invention of the Matsuo et al and Tomsen combination to ensure that the system complies with existing laws.

Response to Arguments

6. Applicant's arguments with respect to claims 1-77 have been considered but are moot in view of the new ground(s) of rejection.

Conclusion

7. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure. White discloses conducting electronic transaction where authorized individual places order selections of items from a non-authorized individual.

Roberts discloses a lottery gaming system, which maintain jurisdictional and age control for sale of lottery tickets.
